

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

And active frontal system will arrive across Wales early on Saturday associated with strong winds and a stream of very moist air. This is expected to generate some very large rainfall accumulations through Saturday and into Sunday, especially across high ground. 50 to 80 mm could fall quite widely with over 100 mm possible across prone areas such as Snowdonia. Given the saturated state of the ground from recent rainfall, this amount of rain is likely to lead to some flooding.

There are uncertainties over the duration of the spell of rain and therefore peak totals, and this alert will be kept under review.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:15 on Sat, 05th Dec 2015 until 12:00 on Sun, 06th Dec 2015

Heavy rain is expected to develop early on Saturday and persist into Sunday. Given saturated ground and higher river levels, be aware of the potential for flooding affecting parts of communities, disruption to travel, and danger to life from fast-flowing deep water.
